KEIGHLEY ANNUAL FESTIVAL AND DOG SHOW.

This annual festival was held at the village of Keighley, which lies near to Halfak, Bradford, and Huddersfield, on Friday and Saturday last, and was better attended by parties from the above populous towns and the surrounding neighbourhood than was ever before knows, which was attributed to several new features being introduced in the programme of ammements. The brass hand and the illuminations in the streets formed a very great attraction. The dog show, the pony leaping, and the brass band contest, which are entirely a new feature, were under the auspices of the Keighley Agricultural Society. The money takes on the second day hat year was about £120; this year on the second day thereceipts amounted to about £150. The brass band contest, which will be seen the second day in the second day

FRIME SAGACITY.—A correspondent writes as follows:—Y Some nine months since a friend high gin Norfolk took a fancy to a favourite tom cat that I had from a kitten. He was put in a hamper and taken 100 mise by rail, and was rested with great kindness for a 'day or two within doors. On being tet out he instantly disappeared and could not again be found. A short time since, on opening my door one evening, the very cat rusked io. THE ST. LEGER OF 1865.

THE ST. LEGER OF 1865.

The ninetiath St. Leger is run off on Wednesday next; and by many people it is conjectured that a great surprise is in store for us. They consider Gladiatour a much over-rated animal, and that he will meet his match on the Doncaster moor, not only in the "Sellinger" but in the Oup race; and that for the former event some rank outsider will bowl over all the cracks. No doubt every exertion, will be made to overthrow the Gaul, but it is very certain that the yarious reports which were in circulation about him last week had no foundation in fact, for he was merely eased in his work for a day or so, and is now as fit as any animal in the world. We have applied all the influence and energy at our command to assertiain what the actual composition of the Leger field may be; just we cannot ascertain that more than ten or a dozen will go to the post, for Attache's and Zambezi were settled at Derby last week, and Audax at Exeter; whilst Broomiclaw is admitted to be 10lb inferior to. Breadalbane, consequently hopeless, and Brown Dayrell will be the second string of Fundon instead. We do not think now that either Brahma or The Joker will be sent, though both are well; and we are doubtful whether Kangaroo is sufficiently recovered to be enabled to take part in the fray. We hear, too, that Oppressor is short of work, and St. Hegans merely walking. The field, therefore, must cut up smaller than was apprehended a week ago, and may be taken from the following list:—

Horse.

Tenier. Jockey.

That he possessed imments spect, we have always consequent, on we never dream to fin shallity to stay the Loger, though the possibility is he might, had he kept right, have just minanged to run indo a place.

Augus, by Voltigeur out of The Wizard's dam, by The Cure, will doubtless run, for Ciaremont has been leading him good long work. On Wednesday last, after two coaters, the pair went a two mile and a quarier gallop, and our Malton correspondent assures us that Lord Durham's colt did his work remarkably well, and pulled up as fresh as a kitten. Great things were expected of him during the interegram, but he failed to realise them either over the Rowley Mile or in Surrey, and we have to idea of his landing a coup for the coming St. Leger, as he is not class enough. His site, it is true, wor the Derby and Leger in 1850, but he has never got a winner of either of the leading three year old events, for his stock generally require a deal of time. On the dam's side, Arial has attraction, for his half-brother The Wizard won the Two Thousand and was second in the Derby, and his grandsire, The Cure, ran up for the Loger in Faugh-a-Ballagh's year. Still, Ariel is not near so fast as The Wizard, but with age he may make a good useful animal. Should form Ashmalt be unable to get to Klarmska's weight he may have the mount on Ariel.

Breadalbaxz, by Stockwell out of Blink Bonny, is exceedingly quiet in the market, for Mr. Chaplin has evidently found out that he is not near so good as he thought him to be, and we question very much whether he is a stayer, for he pulled up exceedingly tired at Go-dwood, where he had only the roaring Jack o' Lautern to best min a couple of had 'dus be side. We nover attached much importance to his Assor's success, as he was in receipt of several pounds from a moderate but of animals.

Brown Daynell, by Wid Dayrell, out of Potulans, was amiss all has teas-var-and could not be trained. We saw him at Gorgeo Otter's last back and, when he struck us a being a big, loose rande horse, of me question being within a dozen lengths of the winner?

CHRISTMAS CARGL, by Rataplan, out of Misletce, notwith-tanding that he managed to get second for the Derby, will not go down with the speculative community, for they fancy not only did he get a place in Surrey by a mere "fulke," but that he cannot be got fit by Wednosday next. We can, however, inform our readers that we know he was highly tried with Sandal and Moulsey in the Bath week, and his stable backed him for a heap of money to wir the Blue Riband. For the Derby he ran a good, honest horse, and if he wins his trial this week he is sure to be forward in the Leger tussle. He was so gross at Wolverhampton that we were not surprised to see him in the rear of Attache, especially as the Stanton people knew they were going to disqualify the latter! We are afraid want of condition will be his bugbas rin Norkshire.

The Durg, by Stockwell, out of Bay Cella, by Orlando, has not been seen out since last autumn, when he had some difficulty in beating. The Lieu, Irritation, and Brown Broad on the Kuvesmire. Just prior to the Derby he was seized with influenza, which completely prostrated him, and he had a somewhat prolonged ilness, which we are afraid has materially isfleeted his preparation for the Leger. We have not seen the horse since last January, but our Danebury correspondent says he is much improved in looks latterly, having filled out. Our informant, too, has all along considered that he has not done aufficient work for Doneaster, and on Saturday John Day tried him a mile and three-quaeters, in the presence of the Duke of Baufort and the Marquis of Hasings, and they were dumbfounded-to see him beaten easily. Of ourse, the news spread like widting, and The Duke was peppered everywhere. His noble owner not only considered there was some mitakle in the trial, but backed the horse to £350 more at Warwick, after Ackworth won the Queer's Guineas, and we hear that the labe was to be put through another ordead with Ely, We cannot, however, believe in George Fortham landing Fainax, by Defiance, out of Constance, by Epirus, is entitled to a fair amount of respect, from the circumstance of his having beaten Sydmonton at Bath, and Ackworth at Salisbury. Both those animals have shown good form this season, especially Sydmonton; and, through the latter, Friday ought to be viewed as a fair Leger candidate. He is bound to stay every inch of the course; and if the ground be heavy, as it was last year, but of which there is little prospect, judging from present indications, he will like it all the better, and it will be more in his favour. He was, however, so outpaced in the Derby that we cannot conscientiously recommend him to win; but our readers may yely upon it that if anything happens to the cracks he will be there or thereabouts.

Andra at Exeter; whilst Broomelaw is admitted to be 10lb inferior to. Breadalbane, consequently hopeless, and Brown Dayrell will be the second string of Findon instead. We do not think now that either Brahma or The Joker will be sent, though both are well; and we are doubtful whether Kangaro is sufficiently recovered to be enabled to take part in the fray. We hear, too, that Oppressor is short of work, and St. Fagans merely walking. The field; therefore, must cut up smaller than was apprehended a week ago, and may be laken from the following list:

See, he was abent from his work, being confined to walking exercise in the paddock, and it has since tratspired that his near hind hook had filled. This will faccount for the supposition that set in against him in the maket at the beigning of the week, and sime doubt is now entertained as to whether he will ever see Doneaster. That he possessed immerse speed, we have always a conceeded, but we never dreamt of his ability to stay the Loger, though the possibility, is he might, had he kept right have just managed to run into a place.

At York, as in Minara case, she came from the extreme out-ids prices of 1,000 to 10 and 15 to a most promisent one, for she was both her races there in a canter, beating Mr. Sutton's spring purchase (Nichtwatch) and the highly extolled Broomielaw just as she lived; and that too after disposing of White Duck, Siberia, Garderisure, and others, which showed there was no fluking. At Whitewalt they think that she will repeat the Imperieuse trick; but though we are prepared to see her run a good mare we do not fancy she can best either Regalis or Gladiateur. She has done well of late, and is vastly improved since Goodwood; indeed there is no tolling now to what extent her improvement has gone. Our Malton correspondent sends us would that the mare took at won the gallop yest-rlay (Thursday), and finished to the entire satisfaction of John Scott and Jen Perrin. THE DONCASTER REVELS.

A great gathering will assuredly take place on the Town Moor of Donesster next week, and we are pleased to hear that the course is in such capital order.

The length to which our St. Leger commentations have extended, and the late hour at which the Steet Calendur reached us, procludes the possibility of our entering into so full an analysis of the libral programme as we could desire; hence our readers must be satisfied with a brief summary of the various items, to which we find the handsome sum of £2,000 is acain voted by the powers that be.

Of the eight events set down for decision on the opening after-hoon (Tuesday), five are ripe for discussion; and the Champagne Stakes and the Great Yorkshire Handicap are the leading affairs. For the former, Knight of St. Michael, Vespasin, Beelzbub, Lord Lyon, Monarch of the Glen, Lochiel, Robin Hood (Paron Rothschild), Readan, and Strathoona are among the festy-nine entered. The result must have material influence upon the D-rhy market, and if Lonn Livo's the harves from Beelzbub Lord.

The result must have material influence upon the D-rhy market, and if Lonn Livo's the hearves from Beelzbub. To the pair almost certain to snatch the laurels from Beelzebub.

umost certain to snated, the laurest from Deellerbul. To the per-we confidently leave the issue.

Greeva has only Mass Harbiteries to fear in the Filly Stakes, and MACOPALD may have to yield supremacy to the dark Kiroliff De St. MIGHAEL for the Glasgow honours.

Thirty-five have declared forfeit out of sixty-two for the Great Yorkchire Handicap, St. Leger course; and two others (Sister to Drake and Annier) have since been struck out. Though Moulsey is penalised 71bs, which makes his weight 9st 11b, he will assuredly beats more than beat him, and Gratitode, Claremont, and Swordsman, are detectedly the cream of the remainder. One of this quarter seguit to win, and in, and Gratitode, Claremont, and Swordsman, is considered by the cream of the remainder. One of this quarter seguit to win, and rise of the best of the Daneburyites should win the Revival Plate; but we decline to pass an opinion upon the probable Doneaster Plate resist, and the two handleaps over short courses to one Wednesday, litt does not end in a compromise, the Municipal Stake will go to Saks 3, and the two handleaps over short course be coverned by the for a run, Rustic would be our unconditional wholes for Thorsday 3 Gots in sing Gasta may triumph.

Were we certain of Turn, Rustic would be our unconditional choice for Thorsday 3 Gots in sing Gasta may triumph.

The Scarborough Stakes should certainly go to Hara at Law; and he night has take the Zelland Stakes now that Lord Stamford's horse is anuss.

and he might also take the Zeitand States how that Both others is amiss.

Twenty-six accepted for the Cleveland Handicap, one mile, but Bradmante and Guinevere have been scratched since, and either Argonaut, Gratitude, Stockinger, Greenland, Fair Melrose, and Hawkshaw may be expected to land the prize. Of this half-dozen we prefer Argonaut, Stockinger, and Hawkshaw; and we must plump for STOCKINGER, who is in rare form just now.

Of course there is no knowing what will show for the Doncaster Cup, but we opine that Ely, Baragah, Wild Charley, and Glaidsteur will be in the entry list when it closes on Monday night. Eur must be, our choice, but we expect to see Baragah distinguish himself lesses being

THE CAMBRIDGESHIRE AND CESAREWITCH.

In another column we give the imposts for these important events, from which it will be seen that there is a range of 63lbs, in the handicap for the Gearewitch, and of 56lbs for the Cambridgeshire. It would be ridiculous just on the even of our going to press to attempt to make any selections of either race, as the weights appear to have been fairly adjusted, and, next week, after the Leger to make any selections of either race, as the weights appear to have been fairly adjusted, and, next week, after the Leger to the candidates for each event, especially as the lists will be weeded by then. The acceptances for the Cesarewitch are to be signified by noon next Tuesday, at which hour all horses will be left in the Cambridgeshire that are not a specially ordered to be struck out. Our correspondents at the various training quarters will report progress every week, as to what the several horses are doing.

THE ST. LEGER.

(To the Editor of the " Il'ustrated Sporting News.")

(To the Editor of the 'Livastrated Spring Meth.')
Sir,—Will you kindly permit me, through the columns of your valuable paper, to venture a prediction on the St. Leger of 1865. My opinion is that the race lies between Gladiateur, Regalia, Streat albane and The Duke. I shall therefore plump for Gladiature and the win, Regalia and Breadalbane for places, and The Duke as a cockboat. If an outsider wins it will be Ariel.

I am, Sir, yours obliged,
Julies Sr. Lawrence.

THE BREEDING OF THE HORSES IN THE ST. LEGER.

(The right of reproduction is reserved.) .

BY DR. SHORTHOUSE.

BY DR. SHORTHOUSE.

A few weeks ago I contributed an article to these pages on the breeding of some of the Stockwells, and in that article I furnished a tabulated pedigree of Regalia, and made some explanatory comments on the success of Stockwell as a sire in general, and on his union with the Touchatone mares in particular. But my business now is with the chance the progeny of Stockwell possess in carrying off the St. Leger, and as I am only concerned with the breeding—my own especial province—of the progeny of Stockwell, I must not trespass on the domain upon which several prophets—far more successful than I pretend to be—sport with more or less success, and indicate the actual winner. It am only permitted to point out the color filly which, on breeding ground, I think ought to bear the pain of all Stockwell's get. This is satisfactory, because it is an easy process. I indicated pricty clearly in my first article that I thought Regalia with training or health, and, therefore, limiting myself to breeding wow as then, I procials in Regalia to be the best, barring Breadalbane, who I expect won't run. I have to find another string to the bow, tor it is not admissible that the "Emperor of Stallions" should have but one representative to do battle for him in one of the grand encounters of the year. The Duke therefore claims a passing notice.

My readers will remember what I said about the success attending Stockwell's amours, that he was only successful with Touchstone mares, or those descended from still better blood. The Duke's dam is a grandfullystier of Touchstone.

As I am not permitted to say anything about the condition or training of the horses which I pass in review, I can only remark that as John Day's geese are proverbildly swans, it may be so with The Duke; and that all the trumpeting with which his renewal of condition has been produlmed may only tee the hersid of disaster and defeat. But it he be all that he is self do be, of which I thelieve very little, not only will all the rest, but even. Gladlateur himself be compelled to "sing small." The Duke is well bred enough to win—i.e., he is as well bred as The Marquis, who did win. Further, I cannot say, and would prefer not to go into the matter of training, backing, hedging, and the other daylity, which seems inseparably associated with the Danebury favourities.

not to go into, the matter of training, backing, hedging, and the other devilry, which seems inaperably associated with the Danbury favourities.

KLARINSKA is a mare curiously bred, and if any real bad bred one were to win an important race, I could wish that she should do so, because she would illustrate a. theory in breeding which I was the first to promulgate, and, which is with me an especial "hobby," I have always contended that, if a horse (or maro, be descended in the tail made line from the Waxy blood—i.e., that if the top line of all of his sense in the contended that, if a horse (or maro, be descended in the tail made line from the Waxy blood—i.e., that if the top line of all of his sense in the contended in the sense of the contended in the sense of the contended in the sense of the sense

Fairy, who was out of Vioisitude by Pipator: there is not and cannot be any better blood in the world than this union of Waxy and Pipator blood; it is only to be regretted that so much of the Blacklock—"beloved" or "accursed"—which all depends upon the sapect from which I behold it, whether derisively or repugnantly, is intermixed with it. If Wissams could have been by any other horse than Hotman Platoff, and if her dam could have been by any other horse than Velocipede, I should have looked upon Klariuska with much more favour than I can do under existing circumstances. But there is another one in the hunt whose ancestry will bear comparison with that of the best I could discover or construct, and that is Gladiateur.

Parisipor Shooting.—In Yorkshire in no previous year have sportsmen made better bags than during Friday and Saturdey. Young birds are plentiful and remarkably line, eclipaing the grouse for quality, and some coveys have from 14 to 16 birds. The carn is all led or stooked, and free access to all sorts of lands was obtainable. The great slaughter was done among the turnips. On Saturday the prices were lower than for years past, being 2s. to 2s. 6d, per brace.

'There was an average muster of dog fanciers present who backed the bitch with some spirit. The modus operandi of this peculiar sport is almost generally known. Now it has its drawbacks, benefits and characteristics like other sports, but there is something especially novel in the second of the second

HERR VON JOEL.

HERR VON JOEL.

This personage was undoubtedly one of the characters of London. Years ago, when "Evanas", was the only music-hall in London, Herr Von Joel, the German Silleur, was engaged to "conitate tha heete birds wis my tongue-so," and so greats a lavourite did no become, that the engagement only termloated with his death. Of late years all we saw of him was in passing among the visitors with a box of elgars from which everybody thought it a duty to select one, and not ask for the change. Poor Von Joel! he was always a duffer at the bird business, but a better hearted fellow never lived, and we doubt whether there was a more popular character in London. He has left a wife in indigent circumstances.

SAILING MATCH OF THE TEMPLE YACHT CLUB—THE START.

We have presented our readers with representations of all classes of yachts, from the lordly 200-ton schoone downwards, and now we give a sketch of the very smallest fry, in the match of the Temple Yacht Club. This is, we believe, the youngest club on our river, and yet there are some points in which it is well worthy of imitation. In the first place, the crist are small, averaging a very few tons, and those who know anything of sailing, are well aware how much more valuable the practice obtained in a little yacht is over that in a large one; so that to anyone beginning in a vessel of any great size, it is next to impossible ever to become a thorough yachtsman. Secondly, it is a paculiarity in this club that all their matches are restricted to amateurs, no professionals being allowed; so that all the races may be called Corithlian, instead of one now and then being made a great feature of. And again, it is generally the practice that the third or has trace every season is for the beaten boats, or those who have old wen a prize, so that allouset everyone has a chance, and as the plizes are numerous, though not dvery great value, they are diffused shong a larger number of owners than used. On these grounds we shong a larger number of owners than used. On these grounds we have a subject of the start from Charlion.

DORCHESTER BOAT CLUB REGATTA

DORCHESTER BOAT CLUB REGATTA.

We could have wished that our regatts were improving in an increased ratio with our race gatherings. For several years past they have been depulling down, but from what cause it is impossible to say. On either side of a there spepars to be but little trouble in getting yachts to even eiter-they as the in Weymouth, though liberal rewards have seen eiter-they as the in Weymouth, though liberal rewards have been eiter-they as the in Weymouth, though liberal rewards have been eiter-they are the interest to the prizes. Many of the yachteran down, went round the prescribed course, and departed without expending one farthing in the borough. The committee disheartened at the Ill success of their labours, have, as far as they are concerned, relinquished their labours. Though the "Royal regata" has though if to demise itself, the Boat Club have this year taken up the matter, and arranged a regatta of rowing matches on Monday last. We are requested to remove an erroneous impression which has gained strength, that the funds for the regatta of 1865 were found in the surplus money from the regatta of 1861. This is not so, as the whole of the money offered in prizes was raised by the members of the boat club exclusively, money from other persons having even been refused. The shops were closed, and a large number fringed the Esplande, During the progress of the sports the horses attacked to a gentleman carriage, standing near the entrance to the pile pier, because frightened by the discharge of the small cannon on the dumb barge. KINGSTON REGATTA.

One of the most pleasant of the Thames aquatic re-unions took place on Thesday, under the auspiese of the Kingston Town Kowing Club. Pleasantly situated Kingston offers innumerable attractions to the holiday keepers; and as Thesday was as fine a day as were horse, and is the Mingston folk provided an attractive programme, it is in the control of surprise that a large number of persons assembled on the banks of the Thames to enjoy fresh air and occidence at a the same time. Another sum of £8 axis in furtherance of this race was paid over to Mrs. Boyd, Commercial Inn, Blyth, on Saturday evening last. There was nothing transacted in the shape of beiting. The men are in close training. Boyd, who is at Durham, under Jack Clasper, is so far doing well, but he has a lot to get through to put him in fattle for the match; we however have faith that his trainer will be as fortunate as before in getting Boyd into rare condition. Scorfield we hear little about, though informed that he is progressing splendidly and will astonish the natives on the day. Bob Cooper is engaged to train him.
The race takes place on the Wausbeck in a fortnight.

Young is being looked after by little Hommings, of Richmond, and Boyd by Teasdale Wilson. The latter competitor is pulling very well indeed, and we are sure Young will turn out in his best form.
